POWER OF THESE EXPLOSIVES IS BLASTING GERMANY

ROCKET GUNS have proven effective against high-flying bombers. The ones shown here, long a secret weapon, are known as Britain's "Z" guns. The rockets are seen just as they are leaving the guns located somewhere on the coast of England. Rockets themselves are not new, having been used by the Chinese in ancient times for fireworks displays. Secret tests for rocket guns were conducted in Jamaica.

COMPARISON of the new 12,000 pound bombs now being used against the enemy is shown in this picture, along with a 1,000 and a 500-pounder. The powerful bomb devastates large areas wherever it strikes.

FAR FROM HOME these Australians in a Lancaster squadron in Britain load one of the planes preparatory for a raid on Germany. Here they work hard in wheeling a 4,000-pound "cookie" into the bomb rack.

The Star Weekly, Toronto, April 28, 1944

ROYAL NAVY HELPS DRAW NOOSE TIGHTER AROUND AXIS

BRITISH PLANES line up on the deck of their aircraft carrier for the take-off. Hundreds of British naval aircraft and their carriers will be helping to drive the Japanese from the Pacific after the Germans are smashed in Europe. The Japs will face an unbeatable combination when Britain and the U.S. combine their fleets off the China coast. The Canadian and Australian navies, too, will be there for the big kill.

HERE'S a close-up view of a seaplane and her catapult aboard H.M.S. Sussex. Battleships and cruisers often depend on their seaplanes for information when moving out to attack or through enemy waters.

A WILD BURST of water marks the spot where a depth charge was hurled by these men aboard a U.S. coast guard patrol boat off the Atlantic coast. It's a warning to Nazi subs to stay away from these shores.

JAP-WARD the British navy now takes its way, and destroyers like these accompany the battleships which Churchill in a recent speech declared to be in the Indian ocean waiting for the Jap navy in case it should come out of hiding and face British as well as U.S. naval might. With the surrender of the Italian fleet in the Mediterranean and German weakness in the North sea, naval interest turns to the Pacific.

PRACTISING for the great invasion, H.M.S. Wessex explodes depth charges in the English channel. The vast column of water sent skyward attests the destructive power of these underwater explosions.

OPEN AIR barbering is indulged in wherever possible on the ships that keep up Britain's coastal patrol. Still, sunny and rainless days are not common in the channel and North sea at this time of year.

IT'S A FULL HOUSE, even though nobody in the game has as yet anything more than small pairs, in what looks like stud poker. This crowded coast guard transport seems as private as a goldfish bowl.

IT'S A WALRUS amphibian hanging on by a whisker as the crane hoists it back on board the cruiser. It is used for reconnaissance work and is shot from a warship's deck by means of a catapult.

PREPARATIONS are being made constantly for the major offensive against Japan, when it is expected the Jap mainland will be attacked from British aircraft carriers like these, with the British navy closing in from the west, the U.S. from the east.

ICE AND SNOW are constant menaces to aircraft carriers operating in cold zones, and deck crews must keep flight decks cleared so that planes can take off in an instant. Planes shown here with wings folded are Grumman Avenger torpedo bombers.

MEMBERS of the crew of an anti-aircraft gun on a U.S. aircraft carrier stand at battle stations as a coast guard auxiliary vessel moves by with sails set. Uncle Sam uses almost every type of vessel in the relentless war against German U-boats.

The Star Weekly, Toronto, April 22, 1944

THIS PICTURE clearly shows why Britain's destroyers are often called the "greyhounds" of the sea. With their great speed, they are gradually sweeping Nazi submarines from the seas, and guarding convoys from the underwater perils so that they are able to reach port.

ALLIED-HELD ITALY EXHIBITS MANY BATTLE SCARS

THIS CAPSIZED SHIP, which the Germans left on the bottom of the harbor when they left Naples, has been turned into an asset by the ingenuity of U.S. engineers. They made it a pier where a Liberty ship's five hatches can be unloaded at once.

THESE GERMANS are members of a patrol captured by New Zealand Maoris on the outskirts of Cassino. Their own gunfire is passing overhead as they take shelter in the lee of a snow-sprinkled wall before they are taken to safety in the rear.

CASSINO looked like this after getting from planes and artillery a deluge of explosive as heavy as all Berlin has received in one day. And still there were Germans left. Here jeeps are waiting with Red Cross flags to evacuate the wounded.

HE'S LOOKING to see whether the truck has a chance to extricate itself from this muskeg-like Italian mud.

THE ELITE of Fascist society once lived in this Anzio villa. A German plane has peppered its bay windows.

Dear Mrs. Johnson

YOUR LETTER and the many comments we have heard from scores of women all over Canada have more than ever convinced us that it is you who must decide what kind of kitchens and kitchen equipment you will have after the war.

Sinks, ranges, refrigerators, cooking utensils are the tools you work with every day. That is why we welcome your suggestions. Right now our plants are busy with essential war work. But between times our designers are busy drawing sketches and laying plans, like those pictured here, for the kitchen equipment we intend to build for you, but not until after Victory is won.

Yes, the new General Steel Wares kitchen equipment will benefit by your suggestions. New step-saving—labour-saving and dollar-saving products will be the result.

SPRING FRESHETS play havoc with Italian roads even at their best and this flooded trail is only a detour. U.S. engineers are making it possible for the army and this is just one sample of road conditions that have recently helped the Nazis at Cassino.

HERE'S THE BIGGEST mobile gun used by the U.S. army in Italy. It is a 240 mm. howitzer and is fired at a distance by a lanyard, right, leading from the breech.

THE BIG HOWITZER is pulled into position by what is called a "prime mover," a machine, itself heavily armored. Here the gun is moving up to Cassino front.

HERE IS PROOF that the Allies are fighting amid snow-capped mountains in what is thought of as "sunny" Italy. This photograph of an R.A.F. Baltimore was taken from another Baltimore which went on to bomb the Rome-Pescara road. That river winds into the Adriatic Sea.

HELP YOURSELF TO

BREAD

1/4 of Canada's food energy comes from bread!

IT STANDS TO REASON—if your wartime job means longer hours, more strenuous work—then two slices of bread each meal are no longer enough to supply the energy you need.

Your job is tougher now—more demanding. If you're a machine operator, a metal worker, or working overtime at your old pre-war job—you are burning up more energy than before.

To get this extra energy every day you need more energy food.—This means more bread—at least three slices every meal. The delicious, appetizing bread your baker makes—unlike other carbohydrates—provides lasting energy—the kind that “sees you through” ‘till next mealtime.

Every crumb is easily digested and assimilated. There's no residue for the body to throw off. Every loaf gives you solid nutrition, maximum body fuel at the smallest possible cost. It is your best and most economical energy food.

Every slice of bread is a slice of energy. And your wartime energy quota should be at least one more slice of bread each meal.

Buy wartime energy from your baker

The bread your local baker supplies takes on added importance in wartime. It is your richest and cheapest source of food-energy. And made with milk, or eaten with milk, it is an important source of protein for building and repairing muscle.

Yes, we Canadians at home have got what it takes to help defeat the Axis—the money to back our armed forces in this fight for Victory. There are over 5,000,000 of us gainfully employed in Canada. We have jobs; we have regular incomes; most of us have some form of savings. If everyone of us accepts the challenge of Canada's Sixth Victory Loan we can make this the biggest Loan in our history. We can show ourselves willing and eager to use what we have to help win the war and bring our boys back to home and happiness at the earliest possible moment.

The nearer the Victory, the grimmer the cost but the greater the rewards. Can we who are secure at home fall down in our duty?

Think it over. Realize deep down in your heart that this is your shining hour . . . your time of decision . . . your opportunity to help shorten the war by using every possible resource of savings and future income to buy Victory Bonds to the limit.

SMART AIR FORCE WOMAN KEEPS TAB ON SUPPLIES

PRETTY SNAPPY is this turnout of L.A.W. Ethel Schmaus as she reports to start off another day at No. 11 Equipment Depot, Calgary. Young women like her are doing many jobs to help the air force run smoothly.

CLOSE TAB is kept on all supplies at the depot as L.A.W. Schmaus and an assistant check over everything. It's good for the waistline, too, the girls say, as they have to do plenty of climbing over crates and boxes.

PRIZE PHOTOS FROM THE NEW YORK PRESS EXHIBIT

THIS PHOTO of a boarding house fire won honorable mention in the spot news class at the annual exhibit of the Press Photographers' association of New York, now on in that city. It was taken by Benjamin Greenhaus, New York photographer, as firemen lowered the body of one of the 14 persons who lost their lives in the disastrous blaze. The interior of the boarding house was completely demolished.

A LITTLE GIRL trying to clean her pet's teeth provided a delightful entry in the children features class. The photo gained third prize in that section for Ernest Sisto of New York. The puppy wasn't so very co-operative and kept his jaws closed.

"DADDY'S BOY" was the title given this one by Lawrence Riordan, Newark press photographer. It's his two-year-old son, Tommy, and that big smile enabled his daddy to take second prize in the children's photo class.

"HARLEM RIOT," by New York photographer Pat Candido was given first prize in the spot news class. It was taken during the Harlem disturbance last summer, and it shows a bleeding Negro being helped into a police station.

What every Mother-to-be should know...

Your baby's chances of being born without mishap are greater today than at any time in medical history.

Yet... there is always danger of germ-infection at this critical time of childbirth. You and your baby have a common enemy—germs.

Of course, if your baby is born in a hospital, every precaution will be taken against the risks of germ-infection. In many hospitals, Lysol disinfectant is regularly used for disinfecting surgical instruments, in the cleaning of floors, equipment, bedding, as an antiseptic rinse for the nurse's and doctor's hands, and for washing the patient.

If your baby is to be born at home, You will want to take the same careful precautions. Get everything in readiness—and be sure to disinfect.

infect bed, floor, furniture and wood-work with a Lysol solution (2½ tablespoons to each gallon of cleaning water).

Don't fail to have Lysol on hand at the time of Baby's birth!

Whether you are attended by a doctor, nurse, or other trained person, you will want Lysol ready for their use, to help safeguard you and your baby.

Lysol is a powerful germ-killing disinfectant. It is used by many hospitals, doctors, nurses and public health bureaus. The wide use of Lysol in childbirth is proof of its effectiveness. Keep Baby's surroundings hygienically clean "the hospital way". Have your druggist send you Lysol today!

NAZIS AGAIN BOMB CHURCHES

OFTEN the scene of gay, fashionable weddings, this London church was almost completely burned when hit by German incendiaries during a recent night attack. The raiders scattered bombs at random, causing much damage to buildings in residential districts in devastated London. Many bodies of luckless victims lay unidentified beneath falling debris awaiting discovery by the rugged volunteer rescue workers, who strove night and day to restore order to a once peaceful city. Victims of these attacks hold heads high, knowing Germany is being paid back, money fold by the big fleets of Canadian, British and U.S. bombers over Hitler-land.

DOG'S OF WAR WELCOME SABOTEURS WITH OPEN TEETH

MOVING LOW AND QUICKLY over enemy territory, dogs do not offer as large a target for snipers, can cover ground in less time than the less agile men. Small spools attached to the dog's back are used to unreel vital communication lines.

VITALLY IMPORTANT in training dogs for military work is how to attack and disarm a saboteur. In this picture the attack and disarming is clearly shown. The dog, dashing at the supposed saboteur, knocks him to the ground. He then takes hold of the "gun arm," disarming him and holding him until help arrives. This dog, a Great Dane, weighs 125 pounds and is very powerful.

RED CROSS WORK also plays a prominent part in the training of these canine soldiers. The dog in this picture is trained to return to field dressing station and bring back a member of the staff. This collie also carries first aid dressings.

SENTRY DOGS are taught not to fear smoke. Here a German shepherd dog is shown advancing with a soldier through a smoke screen placed in the brush to simulate actual war conditions. In most cases the dogs are kept on leashes as shown here.

★ SEATS OF WAR . . .

Today, giant planes patrol our coastal waters—protecting precious convoys and dealing death to enemy subs. If you could look inside one of these Canadian-built amphibian planes you would find several hints of new developments in the world of tomorrow.

Pilot's seats, for instance, are now built of moulded plywood—a structural material which in many ways is superior to fine steel or aluminum.

Moulded plywood is remarkably strong and light in weight—important factors in aircraft. It won't warp and it can be moulded and curved to meet very exacting needs.

In wartime, moulded plywood conserves strategic metals and speeds vital production. We know, because the Plastics Division of Dominion Rubber Company is making large numbers of plywood seats for aircraft. And our research men and engineers are looking ahead to post-war developments.

In the future, moulded plywood may be used in making seats, instrument panels and body parts for your car or plane. And plywood may give you new and finer furnishings for your home and business.

RELEASING a voluminous flow of hot lava on to nearby villages and countryside, the famed Italian volcano, Mount Vesuvius, is seen as it recently erupted. You can keep the youthful elasticity of your skin

Compare face with shoulder skin. You'll find shoulders look 5 or more years younger. That's because shoulder skin retains its elasticity—while facial skin pores are clogged with make-up, unable to breathe for hours at a time. And when pores can't breathe skin starts to age prematurely. But Palmolive can help retain youthful elasticity in your skin.

Look younger in 14 days! Each time you wash, (use a face cloth) massage warm, rich, vitalizing Palmolive lather thoroughly into your skin for one full minute. Now a quick rinse and pat dry. Palmolive's 60-second Beauty Massage has been scientifically tested by 2,361 women and 36 doctors. Their reports prove conclusively that . . . in just 14 days, it brings lovelier complexions.

You CAN have a new smile!

Example drawn from a case record

A smile that's marred by chipped or broken teeth need not be a permanent handicap. Today, modern dentistry can do much to make that smile attractive. For, like the movie stars, you can have chipped or broken teeth repaired. Even crooked, misplaced teeth can be straightened by a series of corrective treatments. Your dentist will tell you what needs to be done and how quickly you can expect results. Yes, it's the truth—your dentist can help you have sound, good-looking teeth, but it's up to you to keep them clean and bright!

ON THIS TINY ASSEMBLY LINE, SPIDERS SPIN FOR WAR

SUPERVISING this tiny assembly line, operated by spiders, is the war job of Mrs. Nan Songer of Yucaipa, California. Silk spun by the spiders is used in making army rifle sights, periscopes and bomb sights. Here are three spinners fastened to their work-block of yucca wood with bobby pins, close enough together to let Mrs. Songer keep close watch on the three at once. Ticking the nerve centre stimulates them to begin spinning the precious threads, sometimes as fine as 1/500,000 inch.

AS THE THREAD comes from the spider, it is wound directly on to a steel frame. The silk, a quick drying secretion from microscopic abdominal glands, varies in size according to the age, sex and type of spinner.

MAYONNAISE jars are the dormitories supplied by Mrs. Songer for her spinners, and their diet consists of plant lice, grasshoppers, flies and gnats. Spiders are cannibals, so each gets a separate jar. Adult spiders work an hour a week, spin 100 feet of silk.

NO MATTER what type of gun the criminal uses, the F.B.I., thanks to its extensive collection of small firearms, is sure to know all about it. Here a ballistic expert is looking up an item in the well furnished revolver vaults. The firearms division can generally prove that such and such a bullet was fired from such and such a gun. Such things as ends of string and wool are also easy to the omniscient G-men. The odds are that, if given time, they will find out what factory the fibres came from. They can also identify paint, oil and wood samples in their infrared and ultra violet ray labs.

THEY CALL HER "Daisy Mae," and she is a wax model used to train new G-men. A class is shown in session trying to solve the details of a hypothetical murder.

THIS GIRL is not asked to keep secrets but to unravel them. She's a cryptographer and studies a Nazi cipher message decoded into both German and English.

COMMODOUS is a most inadequate word to describe the quarters which the F.B.I. occupies in Washington. It is a vast, cathedral-like building, and the main office has the proportions of a big auditorium. Here are a few of the girl clerks who have at their own finger ends the 80,000,000 fingerprint records. It is because of this multitude of helpers that a new print can be checked off with such great speed. It's a world information bureau, for it has prints from nearly 90 lands.

PICTURESQUE PEOPLE IN THE CAUCASIAN REPUBLICS

HITLER FAILED to conquer the Caucasus because of the obstinate resistance of the many warlike peoples who inhabit it. With thousands of years of military tradition behind them, the people in mountainous Daghestan particularly plagued the Germans. On one of the wheat growing plateaux, a girl tractor driver is given machine-gun instructions by veteran guerrillas wearing their national headgear.

HERE ARE STURGEON from the Caspian being transported by air to Moscow. A passion for sturgeon and caviar is one of the few relics of czarist days still retained in Soviet Russia. In spite of intensive fishing there are vast quantities of sturgeon still in the salt Caspian and the Volga. Sturgeon once plentiful in Canada are still caught here particularly in Ontario.

MINSTRELS went to war in medieval days and they still do in quaint Azerbaijan, one of the new Soviet republics in the Caucasus area. These are "Ashugs" or bards, who from time to time meet in competition like the Welsh Eisteddfods. The Azerbaijanis, like other citizens of the great Soviet Union melting pot, learn Russian but also cling to their own national customs and languages.

THIS mobile store serving Russian collective farms is somewhat like the chuck wagons of the Canadian west. The inscription on the side of the vehicle says, "We serve all field stations." It sells tobacco and food and small articles of clothing. Here it visits a tractor brigade in Kabardin-Balkarsk republic where lambskin hats still are fashionable.
